CLIENT RIGHTS & RESPONSIBILITIES

HIPAA & PRIVACY / ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

THEORETICAL FRAMEWORK:

Willow Sage Services subscribes to a diverse theoretical framework including cognitive behavior therapy, family systems therapy, solution-focused therapy, and behavior therapy. We believe that each family and case is different and needs to be addressed in this manner.

CONFIDENTIALITY:

We strongly believe in doing everything we possibly can to safeguard the privacy and security of your health information and records. We follow the Health Information Portability and Accountability Act (HIPAA, 1996). HIPAA sets federal standards for the privacy and security of client information for all healthcare providers, plans, insurance companies and anyone that they do business with. HIPAA gives you additional rights regarding control and use of your health information, meaning that you have more access and control than ever.

No records regarding the treatment of the client will be released without prior written authorization. Some services offered by the Willow Sage Services are community based and it is likely that services will be performed in public settings as needed for the treatment of specific issues and strict confidentiality cannot be maintained in these settings and Willow Sage Services is harmless for these breaches of confidentiality.

Exceptions: There are situations where healthcare providers may not have to follow these privacy rules. They include: emergency circumstances; identification of a body or the cause of death; public health needs; judicial and administrative proceedings; limited law enforcement activities; and activities related to national defense and security.

CLIENT RECOURSE IF PRIVACY PROTECTIONS ARE VIOLATED:

If your privacy is violated, report the incident to our privacy officer immediately or to the Department of Health and Human Services, Office of Civil Rights, 200 Independence Avenue, S.W., Washington, D.C. 20201. You will not be discriminated or retaliated against in any way. There are also clear limits on all healthcare providers regarding how they disclose medical information, such as Providers must ensure that health information is not used for non-health purposes. Health information (covered by the privacy rules) generally may not be used for purposes not related to health care-such as disclosures to employers to make personnel decisions, or to financial institutions-without your explicit authorization. There are clear, strong protections against using health information for marketing. The privacy rules set new definitions, restrictions and limits on the use of client information for certain marketing purposes. Providers must get your specific authorization before sending you any materials other than those related to treatment. Use only the minimum amount of information necessary. In general, uses or disclosures of information will be limited to the minimum necessary. This does not apply to disclosure of records for treatment purposes, because physicians, specialists and other providers may need access to the full record to provide quality care

COURT TESTIMONY:

Willow Sage employees will testify in court only in response to a subpoena. Such time is not reimbursable by Medicaid or other insurance and additional charges may accrue. Most CBRS specialists are not licensed professionals, and are unable to offer expert witness testimony. If they are called to testify in a custody dispute, child protection case, etc., they will describe what they have seen and heard (within the limits of the law), but will offer no opinions or interpretations. Most therapists are not qualified as "custody evaluators," and are ethically obligated to say as much if they are called upon to testify. Some therapists are qualified as "custody evaluators," but this service is not reimbursable by Medicaid or most insurance coverage. Additional charges WILL accrue for any such evaluation.

BENEFITS AND RISKS:

The benefits of treatment outweigh the risks. The benefits include but are not limited to increased communication skills, increase independence, increase level of functioning, increased ability to utilize coping skills, and increase social interaction skills. While the risks might include but are not limited to, increased dependence on others, decomposition of symptoms, and frequency and severity of symptoms increases.

DISCLOSURE AND CONSENT - ELECTRONIC TECHNOLOGY

As in all of modern life, electronic communication and technology have become integral parts of the practice of psychotherapy. The following outlines the ways in which we at Willow Sage Services utilize technology to assist our work. In all aspects of our psychotherapy practice, your welfare is our highest priority.

Third-Party (Insurance) billing and communication: If you choose to utilize third-party (insurance) coverage for psychotherapy, we will be required to convey demographic and clinical information to your payer (e.g., insurance company, Medicaid, Medicare). We utilize a "HIPAA compliant" online "electronic health record" system to maintain records and submit claims information. Some payers may require more detailed information regarding your diagnosis, progress and treatment goals. That information is submitted either via an online HIPAA compliant platform, fax, or as email attachments.

Email correspondence: Non-encrypted email is generally not considered to be a secure or private mode of communication. We make our email address known to you, and you may choose to correspond with us via email. Be aware, though, of the risk that someone may be able to access your email. Limit email communications to scheduling and other non-therapeutic communication. Our emails include a "Confidentiality Notice;" however, there is no way for us to enforce those restrictions and we cannot guarantee that your privacy will not be compromised when using email. If you have concerns about this, please limit your communication with your therapist to meetings, or to the "land-line" office telephones.

Text message: Our therapists are discouraged from giving clients their cell phone numbers, as this has been shown to be disruptive to the therapist – client relationship. Like email, text messages are not considered to be secure. Office personnel may use outgoing text messages for the sole purpose of appointment reminders, but incoming text messages will not be acknowledged. Text messaging is not an acceptable way of cancelling or changing an appointment.

Social media: Psychotherapists operate under various codes of ethics that provide guidelines on appropriate behavior. These do not prohibit therapists from engaging with clients via social media, but they do strongly recommend against such practices. Our therapists do not "friend" clients or their family members on social media such as Facebook, LinkedIn, etc. This is to safeguard your privacy, and to maintain the professional boundaries so important to our work together.

Online / distance therapy: Online or distance therapy calls for specialized training and use of a "HIPAA compliant" technology platform that provides for client confidentiality and privacy. Except under very specific circumstances, our psychotherapists are not available for online therapy.

Breaches: In order to comply with HIPAA and other privacy laws and regulations, electronic platforms and services must have a plan to inform consumers in the event of a data breach. If we become aware of a data breath that may have compromised your information, we will promptly inform you.

Storage: Just as your paper records are kept in a locked cabinet, we maintain a password protected Electronic Health Record system to make every effort to avoid theft or violations of your privacy.
